

The Kingdom of Saudi Arabia condemns all forms of terrorism and actively counters the threats of terrorism. The kingdom is determined to confront the threat posed by alleged terrorists and those who support them. Thus, the Kingdom is an active partner in the international commission formed to combat terrorism and has been working diligently with the US and other nations to destroy terrorist organizations and eliminate the threat they pose to the international community. Severe measures have been undertaken to deter and prevent any attacks on both national and foreign citizens.

To obtain up-to-date information on Saudi Arabian travel and security (including the level of threat of terrorism and travel warnings) foreigners should check the Travel Advice Section issued by their government's foreign offices.

The crime rate in Saudi Arabia is generally low.